Making a Newspayer,

It was an exceedingly cold night, on. and Mr. and Mrs. Bunby lingged the stove closely, he passing the time reading a paper, and she sitting looking lato the fire.

Without any preface whatever, she ed by the fraternity 'pi.'" dropped the poker. With so much force did it strike the hearth that Mr. the irrepressible wife continued: Bunby stopped his reading inbruptly, and looked over the top of his spectncles inquiringly.

Mrs. Bunby had a happy thought; quickly it was transmitted to Mr. B. "John," snil she, "you remember some time ago you promised to tell me how newspapers are made."

"Yes, yes; but some other lime, luve."
"No, now, please, John!"

Again he tried to content her with for?" a promise, but it was ut no avnil; she wanted to know, then, just "how papers are put together."

He hesitated. The longer he hesilated the morn impatient she grew, and he felt it. Seeing that postponement was of no avail, he heaved a long sigh, laid aside his paper, and reluctantly began to nuravel for his wife's edification the "inner life of a news-
